

Living on Mission

Mission Partner Update

Redemption Heights

Redemption Heights is a church plant located in Philadelphia, PA that is supported by the North American Mission Board through the Annie Armstrong Easter Offering (AAEO). When you give to the AAEO, you are supporting church plants like this one and countless others through the US and Canada. Our very own Kinci Smith has been part of the Redemption Heights church plant since opening almost five years ago. We reached out to Kinci for an update of how things were going. Below is her response about what is happening at Redemption Heights.

Thank you for praying and continuing to pray for our church and for me.

Prayer Requests and Praise Reports:

- Continued prayer for our city and neighborhood. Very recently a teenager was shot in our neighborhood right outside of our church.
- We are currently renting space from another church and are hoping to find a permanent space. If it is the building where we are now, we need prayer for favor from their decision makers and would need to do quite a bit of work on the building.

- Our college student ministry continues at St. Joseph's University through the end of their school year.
- Women and men have been regularly coming to join in Bible studies throughout the week. We pray that some of them will also join us on Sundays.

Upcoming Events:

- Our Women's Conference is scheduled for March 24-25. Prayers for the women we are inviting and for those who attend, for our guest speaker, and those leading worship.
- Our youth ministry will be starting back up in the Spring. We hope for it to be a place for teens in our community to have a safe place to come and hear the Gospel.
- We are hosting a Spring Festival in April and will be using this time to invite people in our neighborhood in hopes of further building relationships.
